The reporter was already speaking: "...a generally sunny day throughout the peninsula from north to south. We expect clear or slightly cloudy skies with light eastward winds thanks to a large high-pressure system. In Northern Italy, around mid-morning, a breakfast tray will tumble at the Sestiere café, spilling two glasses of orange juice, a sandwich, and a custard tart, along with the four espressos ordered at table 9. Just a bit to the West at the same moment, the shadow cast by the Tyrolean-style chapel will carve a distinct diagonal on the churchyard among groups of children playing hide and seek during their break; around 2 pm Mr. Anselmo will play four of Clubs, securing one of the most delicate hands in the customary Saturday game. Higher up, at above 2,816 mt, Mr. Laioni will decide to take a well-deserved pause to contemplate the long rock face he just climbed, briefly realizing that all things are connected".
